ROBBERY AND SHOOTING AT SHELBURN Falls, Mass.—The safe in the post-office at Shelburne Falls, Mass., was blown open Tues-day night, 18th mst., and robbed of $500 in stamps and $100 in money; also, the safe at J. G. Brown's jewelry store was robbed of $2,500 in jewelry and $300 in money. D. C. Bartlett and J. G. Brown, both constables, started towards. Greenfield to search, for the started towards Greenfield to search for the robbers. On the way they overtook a large, stout man with a value and a hundle strapped about his shoulders. He told a plausible story and they passed on. Afterward they began to grow more assipicious of him and stopped at a house to await his coming. When he arrived, they told him he was suspected of having something to do with the barglary and that they wanted to search him. To this he answered: "You can't do it," and at ones drew two revolvers and begun firing at the officers. Brown and Bartlett immodiately returned the fire but without effect, and all their revolvers were emptied, the result being the savers wounding of Mr. Bartlett. The man escaped up the hill. Bartlett was found to have been hit five or six times, but although badly hurt is now getting along remarkably well. An extra train was dispatched from Shelbarne Falls with Deputy Sheriff Swan and Shelborne Falls with Deputy Sheriff Swam and a posse of citizens, as soon as the news of the encounter was received, and a vigorous search of all the woods and roads in the visearch of all the woods and roads in the vi-cinity of Greenfield was begun. The adja-cent country was picketed and the roads as far-south as Amberst and Northampton were guarded at night, but thus far the robber has not been found. A package containing a per-tion of the plunder of the robbery has been found on the South Montague railroad bridge by an old man named Marsh, who lives near the bridge. His story is that three men came to his house Thursday evening, with a toam. to his house Thursday evening, with a team, to watch the bridge, putting up their team at Marsh's house. About 11 o'clock he heard fring, which was kept up until about 1 o'clock, he not daring to go out. Friday instraing when he went out, he found the bag containng watches, gold pens and other jewelry and sostage stamps. It seems that the three nen poken of were a party sent by the sheriff to earch the bridge, and who began firing at a man they saw approaching and then they ran-away because they were afraid they had hurt an inhocent man.

The chief annoyance from the cievated roads in New York is from the great noise railroads in New York is from the great noise made by every train in passing over the iron-treath work. This is so great and so contin-nous that sleeping is almost impossible along the line of the road, and business men com-plain that it is difficult to carry on conversa-tion with customers. The trains pass every 90 seconds, and will soon be ranning both night and day. The result must inevitably be, unless some rainedy is discovered, that real-estate owners along the line of the road will see their property reduced more than will see their property reduced more than two-thirds in value, and many will be ruined. It would seen that the nuisance could be in a great measure allayed by having the rails or ties rest on rubber cushions.

—The examination of Mrs. Matilda Perry of Deerfield, N. H., whose arrest for inhoman treatment of her adopted daughter took place a fortnight ago, brings out a story of the most heartless and systematic crucity. The little girl restrict that she was tied to a bed-post a number of times and beaten with a heavy hearhlock stick, her wounds being afterward rubbed with cayoune perper and skunk's grease, when she was ordered to stand naked by the fire to let the mixture "dry in." The heat drove her away, however, and then she was whipped again. A beating with a stick of wood taken from the fire-place lamed her hip so that she could hardly walk, and then Mrs. Perry, saying that the Lord had told her to straighten the girl's leg, adopted most cruel methods to carry out the Divine command. The woman varied her cruelty occasionally by themping the girl on the head with a tin disper or dragging her around by her hair, and now the child is a more wreck of her former self.

—A singular story comes from the scene of the peace congress at Berlin of a recent at-tack by Prince Bismarck's dog upon Prince Gorbeliakoff, by which the latter narrowly escaped serious injury if not death. Since the last attempt upon the life of the Emperor William. Bismarck is said to have become very nervous and to have added much to his usual importants manner. When excited he very nervous and to have added much to his usual imperious manner. When excited he has a habit of violently stamping his foot and raising his voice. Something of this sort occurred during a recent interview with Prince Gortschakoff, and the dog, which happened to be present, mistaking his master's eagernest for anger, sprang suddenly at the throat of the Rossian diplomatist. Hismarck, however, sprang forward and écized the animal before he did any injury. Tell me not that science is antagonistic to religion. Science is but the knowledge of nature and nature's law, and he who penetrates furthest into the book of muture must be convinced of the infinite wisdom and hemeficence of the Creatar, and must realize the littleness of human intellect in comparison. That religion which checks human knowledge, and, by torturing the meaning of words, attempts to circumscribe it by artificial meter and bounds, is not divine, but is mere priestorift. It is of the earth, earthly—a very tyrant—and connates from the baser parts of human nature, All real knowledge is useful, and should be held most knownable among men: and I, the mere soldier, who have felt the humiliation of defeat and the eastatic pleasure of vintery in "glorious war," have come to Princeton this day, to bear my feeble testimony to the great truth that industry, patternes and knowledge should be honored of all men, and that their devotees should rank among the highest and best in the catalogue of greatness in the world's gallary. On all grand occasions I begyon to emblasion the name of Pranklin, Agassia and Henry side by side with our great statesmon—Webster, Clay and Lincoln—and with our great soldiers—washington, Jackson and Grant. By their fruits ye shall know them."

THE NEW POPE'S POSITION,-The Roman The New Porr's Postrion.—The Roman correspondent of the Pall Mail Gazette says that Pope Leo XIII, has found his position so embarrassing and so irksome that he is think-ing seriously of abdicating. The Jesuits in-sist upon railing him and controlling his ad-ministration of the affairs of the church, and he with equal persistence seeks to be free from Jesuitical control. The ultramontane corrections that Pope Leo abull walk coreful. party insist that Pope Leo shall walk carefully in the footsteps of Pope Pios and devote himself assidiously to the restoration of the temporal power, while the Pope, seeing that all efforts made to restore the former temporal all efforts made to restore the former temporal power of the papacy are simply wasted and lost, prefers to spend his chergies in other di-rections. In short he believes in accepting the inevitable and going forward, and he is naturally restive and dissatisfied and worn in health, because he cannot have full liberty to do so. The Jesuits have made out a list of cardinals for Leo to appoint, but he is report-ep as saying point blank that those appoint-ments will not be made and that if he lives and rules over the Romish church he shall be-stow the cardinal's hat carefully and thought-fully upon men who will honor the office.

Under a recent amendment to Virginia's onstitution the payment of a poll-tax is made a necessary procedent to voting; and many who voted for the amendment disfranchised themselves. The first election under this new provision developed a disposition to gamble on the delinquent list, and not a few of the members of the Legislature bought their seats by paying the poll-tax for the voter. After the first experience in this line, a law was passed making the paying of tax by any other than the party from whom it was due a fel-ony, alike applicable to both the giver and the taker of the bribe.
